

Criminal Dinner

A MURDEROUS LEGACY

An interactive criminal dinner for groups of up to 60 audience members.

Inspector Lestrade of Scotland Yard needs your guests' help this evening to unravel the mystery of the curious murder of an eccentric Scottish Laird. Your guests are invited to fully reconstruct the crime and, by means of logical deduction, to identify the murderer.

With the active support of the audience, the murder will be re-enacted, and moreover, some of your guests will play the roles of the suspects. Transformed by period accessories, they issue the suspects' statements. Great fun and gripping entertainment guaranteed!

When the crime is solved, those detectives who found the right solution will be presented with a small award by Inspector Lestrade.

This criminal dinner, a very interactive format, is particularly suited for small audiences. With regard to costume and props, it evokes 1920's Britain to a high quality standard. This overall atmosphere is further enhanced by an array of elaborate evidence and investigation files for your guests.

This programme can be arranged in any place of your choice within the boundaries of Germany and the foreign countries of Europe. We gladly submit suggestions for suitable locations on request.

Criminal Dinner

MURDER IN THE MANOR

We invite you to look forward to an exciting criminal dinner in the footsteps of Miss Marple and Hercule Poirot!

This evening, your guests, shoulder to shoulder with inspector Watson from Scotland Yard, are going to reopen the case and pick up the investigation of the obscure murder of the eccentric Lord Jeremiah Highgrove; next to the unusual pieces of evidence the possible murderers are also going to be minutely scrutinised.

With the active help of the participants, it is essential to re-enact the curious circumstances of the murder in which great fun and exciting entertainment are guaranteed. In the end, your guests will certainly succeed in exposing the murderer by combined consideration.

Finally, inspector Watson will close the pleasurable investigations and decorate the winner (or winners) with an Agatha Christie DVD.

With regards to the equipment of the actors and props, this program has a high quality standard: This applies to the costumes on the one hand, adapted from the fashion of 1920's and 1930's England, and, on the other, the intricately designed pieces of evidence and documents of investigation for your guests.

Notice that "Murder in the Manor" cannot be booked for individual persons! The possibility of some of your guests being already familiar with the plot, as may be the case at public criminal dinners, is thus reduced to an absolute minimum.

This programme can be arranged in any place of your choice within the boundaries of Germany and the foreign countries of Europe. We gladly submit suggestions for suitable locations on request.
